Re: United States v. Ankur Agarwal, 19-cr-770

Dear Judge Wigenton:

The Government respectfully submits this response to Ankur Agarwal's request for an additional adjournment of his sentencing. For the reasons quoted in Mr. Agarwal's motion, the Government opposes an additional adjournment.

This proceeding has already been subject to significant delay, and the Government submits that the proper course now is to hold firm with the current date. The Government sympathizes with the family-conflict that Mr. Agarwal described. Yet there may be other solutions, including Mr. Agarwal's sister taking a flight on the morning of the sentencing (such flights appear to exist). If the Court is inclined to grant Mr. Agarwal's request, the Government submits that the one-day adjournment is preferable to the 30-day extension request, which should be denied. Mr. Agarwal pleaded guilty over eight months ago and has had a significant amount of time to prepare.

Thank you for your consideration.

Respectfully submitted,

CRAIG CARPENITO
United States Attorney
